Work in pairs. Complete the sentences with the words in the box. Discuss which ones you agree or disagree with.

boost readership create content meet up with fans review more things run a blog shoot a video subscribe to their channel

- 1 It's easy to shoot a video with your phone if you have a good camera, but it's much harder to edit it well.
- 2 I'd rather run a blog with weekly posts than create content for a YouTube® channel.
- 3 If I were a celebrity, I would meet up with fans on a regular basis and allow them to take selfies with me.
- 4 Many online magazines try to boost readership by launching competitions. I think they should review more things so we know what's worth watching, playing or buying.
- 5 If I like a particular YouTuber, I always subscribe to their channel

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF FAME!

In the late 1960s, Andy Warhol, who was an American artist and movie producer, predicted that in the future, anyone would be able to rise to fame, even if this fame was short-lived. Fast forward to the future and, thanks to the internet and social media sites, there are examples everywhere of ordinary people that have become an overnight success.

Maitane Alonso comes from Bilbao, Spain, where she studies medicine at her local university. She rose to media fame after attending an international science and technology competition in Phoenix, USA, and receiving an award. It all started when her father, whose hobby is having barbecues, cooked too much food again. It bothered her that people throw away a third of the food we produce because there's no way of keeping it fresh. Maitane invented a new food preservation method that stops food from going rancid as quickly in a more sustainable way. It is also a more efficient, faster and cheaper method that aims to reduce the use of chemical substances in food preservation, as they may have harmful effects on our health. As part of her prize, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will name an asteroid after her. She is now the founder of a company called Innovating Alimentary Machines.

Teenage influencer Jacob Sartorius is an international singer who engages with millions of followers on social media. His journey to success began when he was just eight years old. He turned his passion for making people laugh into online performances. He really made a name for himself after lip-syncing videos on Musical.ly, which is now called TikTok, a platform for sharing videos of up to 15 seconds. His next step was to create his own content for his videos and he began to release singles, which are videos or files with one song. Why has Sartorius shot to fame? Of course he's multi-talented, but in addition to that, he's collaborated with other established internet stars, which has boosted his popularity.

Àngela Màrmol, who is a musician and influencer from Barcelona, also has a huge following on TikTok. She runs a successful YouTube channel, too, where she has attracted around 300,000 subscribers. Her success is perhaps due to the fact that her videos show her actually enjoying music. After gaining popularity, Àngela decided to use her celebrity status to raise awareness of bullying and has published her first book about this issue.

As for the prediction we started with, Warhol is still considered to be one of the most influential artists of the 20th century. But did you know some of the other people from this article? Or is it game over for them as soon as another internet sensation appears?

3 Read the article again and answer the questions. Give evidence from the text to support your answers.

- 1 Why is it easier to be famous now than in the past?
- 2 What event led to Maitane's idea?
- 3 Why do we get rid of so much good food?
- 4 What are some of the reasons behind Sartorius' fame?
- 5 According to the text, what may have contributed to Àngela Mármol's rise to fame?
- 6 What is Àngela Mármol's book about?
