We will be communicating through thought transmission (Dev 2)

IP: Likelihood 10/10. Transmission will be just as easy as other forms of brain augmentation. Picking up thoughts and relaying them to another brain will not be much harder than storing them on the net.

PT: Synthetic telepathy sounds like something out of Hollywood but it is quite possible, so long as "communication" is understood to be electrical signals rather than words.

❖ READING

Thanks to DNA and robotic engineering, we will have created incredibly intelligent humans who are immortal. (game_over)

IP: Likelihood 9/10. It is more likely that direct brain links using electronics will achieve this, but GM will help a lot by increasing longevity - keeping people alive until electronic immortality technology is freely available at reasonable cost.

PT: Good chance. The idea that breakthroughs in the field of genetics, biotechnology and artificial intelligence will expand human intelligence and allow our species to essentially defeat death is sometimes called the Singularity.

We will be controlling the weather. (mariebee_)

IP: Likelihood 8/10. There is already some weather control technology for mediating tornadoes, making it rain and so on, and thanks to climate change concerns, a huge amount of knowledge is being gathered on how weather works. We will probably have technology to control weather when we need to. It won't necessarily be cheap enough to use routinely and is more likely to be used to avoid severe damage in key areas.

1. Picking up thoughts will probably be very difficult. FALSE
2. Synthetic telepathy seems to be impossible in the future. FALSE
3. The 'Singularity' has to do with defeating death. TRUE
4. Electronic immortality technology is now available. FALSE
5. Scientists gather knowledge about weather thanks to climate change. TRUE
6. There will probably be technology to control weather. TRUE
