How it all started: the story of three brands

Instagram® founders Kevin Systrom and Mike Krieger originally launched their app as Burbn. When it proved too complicated for many users, they decided to make the app much simpler: take a nice photo, share it with your friends, comment on other people's photos. It was an instant success: on October 6, 2010, 25,000 people downloaded it in 24 hours. Instagram became popular really fast, but the team was very small. Just 13 people were working for Instagram when Mark Zuckerberg bought the company in 2012 for 1 billion dollars. Systrom and Krieger made a lot of money and both men are very rich today.

and 70s

The Van Doren brothers started the Vans company in 1966 and their shoes were soon very popular with skateboarders. Before long, people were wearing Vans as a fashion shoe as well as for sports. The company had some financial problems in the 1980s, but soon it was doing much better. Now they make boots for snowboarders, sponsor sports competitions and organize an annual art competition for high school students. It's a company that also tries to make a difference, with environmentally friendly offices and community projects.

NOW

Edwin Land first had the idea of instant photography when he was traveling with his daughter in 1943, and the first Polaroid Land camera went on sale in 1948. They became really popular in the 1960s and 70s. But when people started to use digital cameras, the Polaroid company had a very hard time: people weren't taking photos in the same way. Today it's a different story. Retro things are popular again and today people are buying instant cameras to use at weddings and parties.
