Josh: How have you changed your habits? Have you started recycling?

Ben: Yes, we have. We've bought plastic boxes for meat and fish, so we haven't needed plastic bags recently.

Josh: Has your town put recycling bins on your street?

Ben: Yes, they have. And they've given us a new bin for food waste this week.

Josh: What else have you done?

Ben: To reduce energy use? We've changed our lights.

Josh: That's great. Have you written about your changes in your blog?

Ben: No, I haven't, but my sister has. I don't have a computer – they use electricity!

Have you seen my house? Yes, is that creepy one there. You may be asking yourself “How has he ended up in that place?”; well, the answer is quite simple. My family has owned this house since 1840. As you can see, it is very old, but my family has taken care of it during all this time for a very special reason: ghosts. My grandpa told me that the house was built on a native-American cemetery, so it has been cursed since then. Many people have seen mysterious shadows walking in the house and things moving; they have also heard strange noises, like a little girl crying or an animal scratching. I haven’t seen any ghosts, but I have felt them, and I have also seen what they can do. Let me explain myself. I went to the house for my vacation and one night I saw that the mirror of living room was full of blood, but when I looked again there was nothing. I’m really scared of this place, but now I have to live here for a few years because I inherited it from my grandfather.

1. That house doesn't belong to the autor.
2. The house is located on a native-American cemetery.
3. The house is not a haunted house.
4. Many people heard strange noises.
5. The author has never seen ghosts.
6. The author didn't inherit the house.
