READING

I used to live in Canada some years ago, one of the most popular days. I saw in the year was Halloween also celebrated in the United States. I remember that my classmates and I used to dress up in strange or unusual costumes. For example, one of my roommates used to dress up to look like different animals each year, the other used to choose a person from a book or movie and I used to choose a famous person from history.

I remember that in many streets, I used to see children in their Halloween costumes. After that my friends and I put on our costumes, we used to go to a big party in the school's ball room, not without going first to some friends' houses, knock on the door and shout "Trick or Treat" until they opened and gave us some funny prize that they used to have prepared in advance for that day and gave it to the funniest or best costume. Those were funny memory days when I lived in Canada.
