Let me tell you about an amazing project at my school that I'm involved in – our rooftop garden! That's right, we have begun recently to build our own garden on the roof of our school. If all goes according to plan, we will have finished by the end of the school year. Right now, we are planting seeds, but my teacher says that soon the plants will be appearing. Later in the plant cycle, we will even be picking the fruits and vegetables ourselves! Hopefully, by the time we are finished, we will have created a great natural space right in the heart of the city. Best of all, with the school's permission, we will be holding concerts and other events in the garden all through the year. What a great way to reduce our carbon footprint !

READING

It started life above a pizza shop in the USA, but the world's most visited travel website, TripAdvisor, will have run for over fifteen years by the end of this month. This year, millions of us will be reading the online reviews and using them to help us plan our holidays. The most reviewed city is London – very soon, reviewers will have posted over two million reviews and will have given the city's attractions a rating out of five 'bubbles'. Astonishingly, the website will have been receiving reviews for so long that very soon, the total number of words published will have approached 12,000 times the number of words in the complete works of Shakespeare!

1. TripAdvisor is one of the most popular pizza shop in England.

FALSE

1. People visit TripAdvisor in order to plan their holidays.

TRUE
