Dress Properly for these Celebrations!

Men in skirts

If you're going to go to a ceilidh, you're going to need your dance clothes and comfortable shoes. Ceilidhs are traditional dances from Scotland and Ireland, and the music is fast and energetic. Everybody dances and has a good time, and ceilidhs are as popular as nightclubs. Girls wear what they want: jeans, skirts or pants; boys wear kilts, shirts and jackets. A kilt is similar to a skirt – it is a traditional Scottish outfit and it's perfect for dancing!

Not All Brides Wear White

When Indian women get married, the traditional color isn't white, it's red, because this color is the symbol of new life. So, an Indian bride doesn't wear a white wedding dress, she wears a beautiful, long, red sari with red and gold jewelry and red henna on her hands.

Good Fun in Gloves

You can be sure it is going to be cold on New Year's Eve at Times Square, NY, so wear warm clothes! Coats, scarves and boots are best. New Year's Eve has been celebrated at Times Square since 1904. Around one million locals and tourists gather near the New York Times' building to see a huge crystal ball descend from a tower during the countdown to midnight. And no one seems to complain about the freezing weather they have to endure to take part in this celebration. The organizers recommend many layers of clothing, a good hat, winter shoes and gloves. It's a magical night of lights, fireworks and friends, but anyone who doesn't dress warmly is going to freeze!
