HELICOMOTIVATION

Quantifiers: a lot of (lots of), some, any, not much/many

1 Read the examples. Complete the rules.

A lot of people buy and sell things online these days.

There aren't many original Star Wars sets.

Maybe you have some cereal boxes.

Do you have any Happy Meal toys?

Your phone isn't worth much money now.

We use 1 a lot of and lots of to talk about a big number or quantity.

We use not 2 much and not 3 many to talk about a small number or quantity.

We use not 4 many with countable nouns and not 5 much with uncountable nouns.

We use some in affirmative sentences and 6 any in negative sentences and questions.

2 Circle the option which isn't correct.

- 1 I have lots of/some/any old toys at home.
- 2 She doesn't spend much/many/any time shopping.
- 3 There aren't many/some/a lot of old things in my cupboard.
- 4 I don't get many/much/a lot of allowance.
- 5 Do you buy any/lots of/much clothes online?

3 Read the examples. Answer the questions.

Someone paid $1,136 for an empty box.
That's too much money!

Do you have too many old toys?

You don't have enough money to buy something.

You have enough games. You don't need more!

Which quantifiers mean ... ?

- 1 more than necessary Too many, too much
- 2 less than we want Not enough
- 3 the right amount or number Enough

4 Match 1–3 to a–c to make rules.

- 1 After too much,  a both countable and uncountable nouns.
we use
- 2 After too many,  b an uncountable noun.
we use
- 3 After (not) enough,  c a countable noun.
we use

5 Complete the sentences with too much/many or enough.

PAGE 52

- 1 You can't buy those expensive jeans. You don't have enough money.
- 2 There are too many people on the bus. You can't sit down.
- 3 People eat Too much fast food. It's so unhealthy!
- 4 There are 25 people and we only have 20 chairs. There aren't enough chairs!
- 5 The movie starts in 20 minutes. We have enough time to buy popcorn.

1 A lot of/Much people now choose to shop online.

When customers go to stores, they don't spend

2 much/many time there, and stores are closing because they don't make 3 enough/many money.

4 Some/Any stores are looking for new ways to find customers. One sports store in London has a skate park. Customers don't need to spend 5 enough/any money to use it, but they often buy new sneakers while they're there.

There aren't 6 much/many stores like this, but Toms, the shoe company, has comfortable chairs, free WiFi and a café. Now, it's easy to spend 7 too much/enough time and money in the store!

7 Answer the question to solve the Brain teaser.

TEASER

Adam and Ben go shopping. Adam has $20 and Ben has $50. Adam buys two T-shirts and spends $9.20. Ben buys five of the same T-shirts and a sweater. The sweater costs $20. The friends then go for lunch. A sandwich is $4 and Ben offers to pay for them both.
