Three Great Career Fields in the US

Lots of people face disappointment when job hunting. There is a lot of competition and little job growth in many fields. Taking that into consideration, what jobs can young Americans look for in the years to come? That question can be difficult to answer. You need to consider the best potential for job growth, pay, stress level, job satisfaction, among other factors. Three of the most prominent fields are:

Medical Field:

In this area, nurses are in demand. Nurse practitioners can perform some of the functions of a doctor, such as prescribing medicine and treating illnesses. Physician assistants are also climbing in America. They conduct physical exams, prescribe medicine and treat illnesses. And their pay is quite high!

Technology Sector:

This is a fast-growing field. Information technology is the #1 field in terms of expected job growth over the next decade, which makes systems engineers among the most in-demand professionals today.

Financial Services:

Many American companies are putting an end to their pension plans and employees will need help with retirement planning. Therefore, jobs in accounting are expected to grow over the next decade. As technology and business evolve quickly, new careers will come and go just as fast. So Americans understand how important it is to choose a career field that will be in high demand for the future ahead.

What should I do?

Bandless Musician

Dear Bandless Musician, if you want to be in a successful band, you'll need at least one singer and three friends to play the guitar, the drums and the keyboards or electric bass. It's important to practice every day. If you don't practice, you'll sound terrible and people won't like your music or buy your songs.

Your look is important, too. If you want to be famous, you'll need an image to make you different. If people don't recognize your image as well as your music, they won't remember you immediately. If you have a unique image, your fans will love you. They'll buy your songs, they'll go to your concerts and... congratulations! You will be the next big thing!
